

ILF Scotland Transition Fund Price Guide

effective from 14 September 2022

There are a number of items / services that are commonly requested where the average cost usually lies within certain price ranges – these are listed below.

Funding within these ranges allows for the purchase of good quality, normally mid-range items and services, that allow the applicant to achieve their desired goals and this approach enables us to assist as many young people as possible in a fair and consistent way.

To make it easier to apply, if the cost is within the price guide, or close to it, we just need to know how much is needed and no longer need people to submit a quote.

We hope that this pricing guide is useful to applicants and reduces the number of quotations we ask for, which should help us to process some applications more quickly.

It is, however, only a guide and should not limit a young person's ambition or creativity in terms of the goal they want to achieve so you can apply for things that do not feature in this guide but you must submit a quote with your application.

You can also apply for things in this guide but at a higher cost but again, you must include a quote and, in addition, explain why you need these particular items / services to meet your goals.

Circumstances will vary for different applicants and ILF Scotland will assess these applications on a case by case basis. Any item that is related to dealing with the difficulties caused by your disability can be considered in addition to the more general items listed above. Please contact us to discuss your particular needs.
